DETAILED ACTION

Pending Claims

Claims 1-14 are pending.

Claim Interpretation

1. In claims 1-14, the recitation "for a tendon for pre-stressed concrete, wherein being applied on the surface of the tendon for pre-stressed concrete," has been given little patentable weight because the recitation occurs in the preamble. A preamble is generally not accorded patentable weight where it merely recites the purpose of a process or the intended use of a structure, and where the body of the claim does not depend on the preamble for completeness but, instead, the process steps or structural limitations are able to stand alone. See In re Hirao, 535 F.2d 67, 190 USPQ 15 (CCPA 1976) and Kropa v. Robie, 187 F.2d 150, 152, 88 USPQ 478, 481 (CCPA 1951).

In the instant case, the preamble merely recites the intended use of the coating composition, wherein the prior art can meet this future limitation by merely being capable of such intended use.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102/103

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Art Unit: 1712

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 1-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Tsuchiya et al. (US Pat. No. 4,692,483).

Regarding claims 1-4, Tsuchiya et al. disclose: (1) a coating composition (Abstract) comprising: oxidation-curing type resin modified with fatty acid (Abstract; column 4, line 60 through column 5, line 20), and a metal catalyst to promote curing of the resin (Abstract; column 5, lines 45-60); (2) further comprising filler (column 6, lines 36-43);

(3 & 5) wherein the iodine value of the fatty acid is 50 or more (column 5, lines 8-15);

(4, 6 & 7) wherein the metal catalyst is salt of naphthenic acid and/or octanoic acid (column 5, lines 55-60); and

(8-14) wherein the metal catalyst is comprised in order that the mass ratio of the metal included in the metal catalyst to the oxidation-curing type resin is 0.05 to 0.5% (column 2, lines 64-68).

Tsuchiya et al. do not explicitly disclose: curing time thereof is adjusted so that tensioning by the tendon can be exerted 30 days or later after casting of the concrete. However, it appears that the prior art would have inherently possessed this property limitation because it satisfies all of the material/chemical limitations of the in the instant invention. It has been found that, "Products of identical chemical composition can not have mutually exclusive properties."

A chemical composition and its properties are inseparable. Therefore, if the prior art teaches the identical chemical structure, the properties applicant discloses and/or claims are necessarily present – In re Spada, 911 F.2d 705, 709, 15 USPQ2d 1655, 1658 (Fed. Cir. 1990).

Therefore, it appears that Tsuchiya et al. would have inherently possess the curing property of the instant invention because they satisfy all of the material/chemical limitations of the instant invention.

International Search Report

5. The international search report cites three X-references. They all have been considered; however, none of them appear to disclose an oxidation-curing type resin modified with fatty acid.
